Lobster Sam a Phoney

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A phoney lobster named Sam almost threw the ninth annual "Patsy" awards—for best animal actor of the year—into an uproar comparable to the Communist writers in the Oscar derby.

Sam came within claw's reach of sneaking onto the ballot until it was discovered he was strictly a mechanical fake.

Despite his starring role with Doris Day in "It happened to Jane," he was disqualified and banished to the Columbia Picture props department.

Leading the field in the flesh-and-blood animal department is Lassie, who will be fighting tooth and nail this week to retain her "Patsy" award, which she won last year.

Pitted against the popular collie in the TV division are three other dogs, two horses and a raven named Nosey.

Nosey, however, is considered an outsider in the race for the award, having appeared in a single episode of "Fury."

Lassie's real competition comes from four-footed performers who work regularly in series of their own. Asta, the dog in the "Thin Man" is a good bet to win. The other contenders are Jasper, the pooch in "Bachelor Father," Rin-Tin-Tin, and Fury, the horse who plays the title role in the series.

In the motion picture division a Siamese cat named Pyewacket, who starred with Kim Novak in "Bell, Book and Candle," has an early edge in the balloting. She is favored to win the "patsy" which went to Spike, star of Old Yeller, last year.

Her closest rival is Harry, a rabbit who starred with Jerry Lewis in "Geisha Boy."

Cheta, Tarzan's chimpanzee, King, the dog in "Proud Rebel," and Tonka, the horse in the movie, Tonka, make up the rest of the field.

The "patsy" awards will be announced Saturday at a special presentation party — complete with entertainment provided by animal acts. Refreshments will be served the nominees during the program; i.e., dog biscuits, bird seed, hay and catnip.

"Lady, there's a wolf in the room . . ." Emlyn Williams in Dylan Thomas' "A Boy Growing Up." Internationally known actor and playwright, Mr. Williams appears Monday at the Royal Theatre. His performance has been called "a real harvest of laughs," (Time Magazine), "an evening of irresistible charm," (New York News), "a wonderful world of wackiness," (New York Mirror) and, says Newsweek: "The words are winged and the vignettes are wickedly, uproariously funny . . ."

Must Serve Majority Private Stations Say

By BERNARD DUFRESNE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors heard the view Wednesday that privately-owned radio stations must serve the desires of the majority of the listening public to be financially successful.

Most of the seven broadcasters asked to explain their philosophies of broadcasting agreed that the majority of listeners want popular music recordings.

Success of their stations, they said, in effect, proves it.

ONE B.C. STATION

Appearing before the board as their five-year licences come up for renewal March 31 were CKEY Toronto, CHUM Toronto, CKOY Ottawa, CKNW New Westminster, CFPA Port Arthur, CKWS Kingston, and CKRN Rouyn, Que.

Their views on the time allowed for advertising spot announcements ranged between maintaining the present rule to removal of all restrictions. Stations now can carry a maximum of five spots, totalling four minutes, in any 15-minute period.

BAD PRACTICE

While some of the stations admitted they had used giveaway programs to attract audiences, all agreed that such programming is not good radio practice.

Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman, said the BBG believes renewal should not be automatic, but that performance of each station should be examined at renewal time.

SELECTED SEVEN

It was obvious that not all could be examined in detail, so the board selected seven on the basis of geographical distribution, size of operation and programming that had been brought to its attention.

At the end of the hearing, Dr. Stewart said the board had learned a lot from the broadcasters and was grateful and appreciative.

NEW REGULATION

The board proposed a new regulation that would permit renewals for periods of less than the present fixed five years so that an equal number of licences will come up every year.

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of CKEY Toronto, said experience of 10 years has shown the success of private stations lies in presentation of recorded music. This was what the great majority of listeners wanted.

He said he would not change his programming, unless the board insisted, adding that it is "emphatically and categorically cheaper" to play recorded music than to hire musicians to perform live.

William Hughes, manager of CKNW, said his station tends to keep away from rock 'n' roll music, banning 18 records on a recent list of 30 hits.

Lack of Licence Penalized $32.50

Argument that he was a primary producer, not a commercial enterprise, failed to win freedom in Saanich police court for Herbert Charles Saunders, 3994 Blenkinsop, who was charged with operating greenhouses without a trades licence.

Mr. Saunders told the court he understood that, since he was assessed as a primary producer, who sold only the products he grew himself, he was not subject to a trades licence.

In convicting him, the court held that although accused was a farmer, there was no limit to the number of other endeavors in which he might engage. This would include commercial greenhouse operation, which is subject to licence.

Saunders, who has four greenhouses on his property, was fined $32.50 including a six-month licence fee of $7.50.

No Decision On School For Pat Bay

No decision has yet been made over the establishment of an aircraft training school at Patricia Bay Airport, Works Minister W. N. Chant said last night, but added "It seems a possibility."

Moving of the aircraft section of the Federal-Provincial Trades and Technical Institute from Vancouver to the provincial government's hangar at Patricia Bay was advocated March 7 by the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce, in a submission to Mr. Chant.

"It seems to be a possibility," Mr. Chant commented, "and as a member for the area I am naturally interested in the progress of the area."

Mr. Chant said no decision could be reached by his department, alone, as the education department is also involved.
